Remarks/Market Observations:	*The prevailing wholesale price of Bangus continue to increase from last week's (September 22-27) prevailing price of Php110.00/kg to Php115.00/kg this week (September 30-October 4). According to interviews, the increase may still be attributed to (1) the higher demand for Bangus relative to the recent issue on the "African Swine Fever" (ASF), and (2) the decrease in the supply coming from major source areas such as Pangasinan, Bulacan, and Rizal due to producers' postponement of harvest in an effort to increase the Bangus' size and value. *Meanwhile, the wholesale price of local Galunggong "lalaki" (Decapterus macrosoma) decreased this week due to the higher volume of unloading at the Navotas Fish Port. However, it was observed that there is still a high number of brokers/traders selling frozen/imported Galunggong (Decapterus spp.) and other marine fishery commodities despite the higher supply of local Galunggong. *As for Tilapia, the price and supply of the said commodity remain stable for the whole week. It was also observed that there were some brokers/traders who decreased their selling price. *Per interview with brokers/traders, the nearing of the Christmas holiday might have also contributed to the higher price of some fishery commodities.
