BACKGROUND Carps are commercially desirable and is a popularly cultured species in Asia and the Indo-Pacific region, broadly divided into two groups: Asiatic or Chinese major carps (Grass carp, Bighead carp, Silver carp and Common carp), and; the Indian major carps (Rohu, Catla-catla, Mrigal). A few of these fishes were introduced in the country as early as 1915 and in the 1960s for aquaculture, food and human consumption, and stocking materials in inland waters. NIFTC being the National Center for Cyprinids and Silurids Development Program were one of the first institutions who were tasked to research on the production of carps. Presently, the Center has already established technology on breeding and grow-out culture of various species of common and major carps. However with the continuous increase in the demand for carp fingerlings, it has been a challenge for the Center to accommodate the requests most especially of the private and small scale fish farmers, since request for stocking and fish dispersal for BFAR and LGUs are being the top priority. In addition to the gaps that needs to be filled, is the limited number hatchery operators in Rizal and Laguna who are involved in the fingerling production of carps. Tapping small hatchery operators to benefit from these developed protocols is a big move on the promotion and production of these economically important species. Technology demonstration is one of the approaches seen by BFAR-NIFTC as an opportunity that could help budding fish farmers to successfully transition into aquaculture business, by providing them with hatchery facility and breeding technology to produce quality fingerlings for the grow-out culture operators. With the clean cut on their production costs, more fish farmers will now venture into carp aquaculture.	[Bidders must state here either “Comply” or “Not Comply” against each of the individual parameters of each Specification stating the corresponding performance parameter of the equipment offered. Evidence shall be in the form of manufacturer’s un-amended sales literature, unconditional statements of specification and compliance issued by the manufacturer, samples, independent

More producers mean more production, and more production leads to food sufficiency. Hence, production outside BFAR continues, showcase of the technology is done, food sufficiency can be secured and alternative source of livelihood to communities can be offered through technical assistance and technology transfer. With this, the goal of intensifying fisheries production to sufficiently support the Bureau's program can be met and its vision for a food secure Philippines with farmers and fisherfolk having can be at hand. II. OBJECTIVES The project aims to contribute 4.8 M fingerlings to fishpen and fishcage operators in Laguna Lake, contribute 1,920 MT of marketable fish to the overall fish production of the country, increase the income of fisherfolk beneficiary and provide livelihood opportunities in the community III.
